

Bank of America

What is the worst thing that could happen at your headquarters?

The aftermath of September 11th left the employees of Bank of America's New York headquarters in disarray, scattered in temporary offices from Jersey City to Long Island.

When Bank of America found a new space in Midtown, EPS was hired to get everyone in and working. Move management, furniture, IT. All on a massive scale and with no time to lose.

The EPS team inherited a seven-phase relocation plan and streamlined it to three. Tight control of dozens of vendors synchronized this effort, saving New York-sized measures of time, money and aggravation.
